Don't ever call me

Obectives

I'd like a job where I don't have to herd cats. I'm really good at herding cats, but we should all be adults here, not cats.

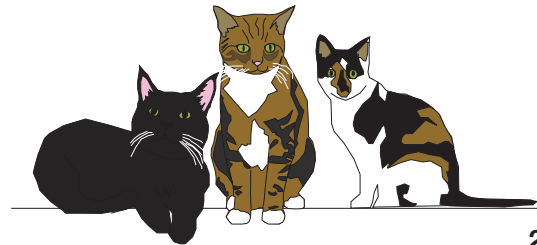

I guess herding dogs would be ok. They take direction a little better.

Relevant Work History

Professional Cat Herder

2007 - Present

- Herd all types of cats: smart cats, dumb cats, crazy cats, lazy cats, etc.
- Other stuff too, but in general just herding a shit ton of cats.

Full Time Figure My Shit Out-er

2000 - 2008

- Conducted various kinds of business activities that helped me learn who I was, who I wanted to be, what I was good at, and what I wasn't good at.

Skills

Ok, let's deduce some things from my resume:

- My lack of aol or sbcglobal email address should tell you I know my way around a computer.
- I created this resume in InDesign. Also, I drew those cats. So I'm not useless when it comes to designing. I'm not a professional, but if you ask me to design your brochure or newsletter, I won't use 1990's clip art, so there's that.
- Based on the fact that people keep hiring me to herd cats, you can tell that I am organized.

Education

I have a bachelor's and a master's, but none of that really matters. What's more important to know is that I don't like messing up and I don't like being wrong, so if there is something I need to know to do my job, you better bet your ass I'll figure it out fast.
